

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

Further slight accumulations of snow are possible the rest of Tuesday. As temperatures fall under clearing skies later Tuesday and overnight into Wednesday, ice becomes the main concern as lying and melted snow refreezes.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 11:00 on Tue, 22nd Jan 2013 until 11:00 on Wed, 23rd Jan 2013

Icy stretches will continue to affect many untreated roads through Tuesday afternoon, overnight and well into Wednesday morning, particularly where lying snow has frozen. In addition sleet and snow showers will affect parts of Antrim and Down, mainly on Tuesday afternoon with 1-3 cm possible, perhaps up to 5 cm across the Antrim Hills. Freezing fog patches may also add to travel difficulties.

The public are advised to take extra care and be aware of the risk of further disruption to transport.
